In conjunction with Alternative Resolution Centers (ARC) in Los Angeles, Law and Forensics works with parties involved in complex E-Discovery and electronic forensic litigation to resolve conflicts in the most efficient and cost-effective manner possible. Law and Forensics' team members have acted as neutrals, discovery referees, ESI Liaisons and E-Discovery special masters for the L.A. Superior Courts, 2nd Circuit, 3rd Circuit, 7th Circuit, New York Supreme Court, and Delaware Supreme Court.

Law and Forensics' discovery referees include experts who hold both advanced degrees in computer science and the law. They serve as neutral technologists to conduct on-site inspections of systems, review data collections for relevance and privilege, as well as a number of other services relating to the management of discovery.

Law and Forensics' experts are commonly appointed by judges as special masters to assist with complex legal and administrative disputes. Law and Forensics' role as special master typically involves conducting discovery, mediating discovery disputes, and issuing rulings on complex discovery issues.

SELECTION OF SPECIAL MASTER ENGAGEMENTS:

- Law and Forensics acted as a court-appointed E-Discovery special master in a landmark case involving spoliation of evidence, key word search, privilege and work product determinations, form and scope of preservation and production of evidence, and legal hold issues. Law and Forensics' report to the court resulted in the parties reaching a global settlement.
- Law and Forensics served as a court-appointed special master in a multi-billion dollar case involving disputes over profit-sharing and intellectual property, including holding evidentiary hearings, issuing requests and subpoenas deemed reasonable and necessary on issues related to compliance, and delivering a detailed recommendation to the court concerning compliance.
