Law & Forensics’ computer forensics practice has led internal and external forensic engagements in the U.S. and abroad for global companies, government agencies, and international non-profits. We have served as forensic expert witnesses in hundreds of trials and have been appointed by federal and state court judges as forensic neutrals.

Law & Forensics has worked on some of the most intricate and large-scale investigations, both in the private and public sectors, in the United States and abroad. We are recognized as one of the most responsive, well-equipped, and highly certified teams for conducting complex forensic investigations. We have performed thousands of electronic forensic investigations on PDAs, cell phones, smartphones, tablets, Xboxes, and laptops.

Case Studies

Pharmaceutical Company

Problem: Internal fraud investigation.

Solution: Retained as an expert in a large consolidated products liability case. Found that certain employees had not adequately preserved and had even destroyed key evidence in the case. Produced a report that parties used to compel a favorable settlement.

Non-Profit Company

Problem: Employee embezzlement.

Solution: Retained to investigate $2 million embezzlement. Using predictive coding to mine the data, L&F experts forensically analyzed the banking app on a mobile device to prove fraud. The L&F team wrote an expert witness report clearly explaining their findings. The client won the case, recovering all lost money.

Oil & Gas Company

Problem: Class action dispute.

Solution: Served as a forensic neutral in class action dispute involving police department facing multiple allegations. As a forensic neutral, L&F created a forensic protocol was then used to conduct a forensic investigation of more than 50 devices. The parties settled, based on our report.
